

Table with multiple columns and rows, likely a financial or accounting ledger. The table contains numerical data organized in a grid format, with some cells containing text labels. The columns represent various categories and the rows represent individual items or transactions.